Impacts of the Revised Worker Dispatching Act

- ✓ The primary changes in the revised Worker Dispatching Act enacted on September 30, 2015 are presented below. While we will need to make changes based on these revisions, the impact on our earnings will be minimal.

| Primary changes | Initial outlook |
|--|---|
| 1. Improvements to worker dispatching business Distinction between the specified worker dispatch business (reporting required) and the general worker dispatching business will be eliminated, and all worker dispatching businesses will require approval. | We are not engaged in the specific worker dispatching business |
| 2. Employment stabilization and career advancement for dispatched workers The following measures will be implemented in order to provide career advancement opportunities for dispatched workers, including the opportunity to become full-time workers, and for continued employment. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. Dispatching companies will be required to provide systematic training to dispatched workers and career consulting to those dispatched workers who request it. ii. Dispatching companies will be required to provide employment stabilization measures for dispatched workers at the end of their dispatch period (measures for continued employment). (These measures will be required for dispatch periods over three years. For dispatch periods between one and three years, dispatching companies need to show they made various efforts.) | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. Dispatching as a percentage of the whole is very low (less than 30%) ii. Very few of our dispatched workers are subject to these revisions as few continually work at the same location for three consecutive years |
| 3. Revisions to make dispatch period regulations clearer Currently there are no regulations placed on the dispatch period for 26 specialist job types, while a maximum three-year limit has been placed on all other job types. However, to make this system clearer, these regulations will be replaced by the following new system. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. Limit on dispatch period at the employer level: Dispatched workers can work at the same business for a maximum of three years. To employ a dispatched worker longer will require consultation with the majority labor union. The employer will be required to provide an explanation of their response policy based on the opinions received in consultation. ii. Limit on dispatch period at the individual level: Dispatched workers can work in the same organization (section) at the same business for a maximum of three years. | Very few of our dispatched workers are subject to these revisions as few continually work at the same location for three consecutive years |
