

Fullcast Group awarded contract by Tokyo Shigoto Center to offer
"Young Corner" placement services ranging from helping young people find self-fulfilling jobs to following them up after employment

Fullcast HR Institute Co., Ltd. (FCHR) (based in Chiyoda, Tokyo; headed by President and Representative Director Kazuki Sakamaki), which provides outsourced manpower centered on clerical workers in the Fullcast Group, signed a contract with Tokyo Shigoto Center run by the Tokyo Foundation for Employment Services to help young people get a job through the center's Young Corner. It started offering the service on April 1, 2006.

There are some possible reasons that FCHR was nominated for the competitive bidding which led to the contract awarded: FCHR is authorized by the Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare to conduct the Career Consulting Skill Examination designated by the ministry; and FCHR's track record in reemployment assistance, employment assistance for young people, and employment assistance seminars was rated high.

The Young Corner targets those 29 years old or under who visit the Tokyo Shigoto Center. FCHR draws up a plan to help a job seeker get a job to meet each person's preferences based on counseling. In addition, FCHR also provides follow-up services after employment so that they can settle in the workplace.

On top of these, FCHR implements an internship program to allow a job seeker to get five-day on-the-job training and offers "street corner counseling services" at a place near a terminal station where young people tend to get together as well. The objective of the internship program is to enable young people to have a hands-on experience of a job to gain the basis for judgment as to their aptitude, while that of the "street corner counseling services" is to promote the use of the Tokyo Shigoto Center and provide young people who are not accessible to the center with opportunities to consult with career counselors about their employment.
